Thomas Dane Gallery, London, is displaying Marisa Merz's artworks that will be on view through November 12, 2016.

Marisa Merz's works exhibited here cannot be fully understood by calling them alchemical, or any other label. The works not only resist attempts of interpretation and rationalisation but takes us on a more mystical and poetic journey. The artworks answer always with a question; unlabelled and uncatalogued, they're meant to create their own original history. With her, it is not the objects and materials that create art, but the art that create the material world.
